How to do a short faux bob hairstyle when you have long hair.

By Carla Snuggs

If you have long hair and you don't have the guts to cut it, you can still change up your look with a short bob. You pinned your long hair underneath in a curly faux bob. It looks stylish and vintage. Create the short look without taking the plunge! We tapped Naz Kupelian, Celebrity Hair Stylist, Owner of Naz Kupelian Salon & Spa, and Creative Team Member for RUSK International. Naz tells shows us how to get a cute short bob hairstyle without cutting your hair:

You will need a hair elastic, comb/brush, bobby pins and some hairspray.

1. Section your hair, take a section from ear to ear and clip the top section away.
2. Braid the bottom section of your hair
3. Pin the braid up. Fold the plait around and pin in place flat against your head.
4. Tease for volume. Backcomb the top section to create some volume and shape so your hair hides the braid.
5. Smooth the top with a comb.
6. Make a low ponytail. Use an elastic to secure all your hair into a low ponytail. Make sure the hair on the sides is long enough to cover your ears. Keep this loose as this forms the side of your bob.
7. Tuck the ponytail underneath. Pin the ponytail in place underneath. Put a bobby pin through the elastic and pin to the braid. This will make it really secure.
8. Add hairspray to catch any flyaways and smooth your hair!

And there you have it: a chic faux bob that will turn heads.
